Waterways set to reopen on Saturday morning

ASCENSION PARISH — Ascension Parish Government, in collaboration with Livingston Parish, Ascension Parish Sheriff's Office, Louisiana Wildlife and Fisheries, and our Waterway Commission, is pleased to announce the reopening of our waterways effective 8 a.m. on Saturday, June 22.

We understand the importance of our waterways to the community and appreciate your patience and cooperation during the recent closures due to high water levels. While the waterways will be accessible again, please note that the Marvin Braud boatway will remain closed until further notice.

We urge all residents and visitors to exercise caution and prioritize safety while enjoying the reopened waterways. Be mindful of water conditions and follow any guidelines provided by local authorities.

For more information, please visit our website or contact the Ascension Parish Government office directly. Please visit our official website or follow us on social media for updates and more information.

Your safety is our top priority. Please stay safe and prepared.
